PROJECTS

DiWhy (Flask, PostgreSQL, Redux, ReactJS)

live | GitHub

Fullstack app that allows users to share their DIY project with others, and comment on shared DIY projects.

- Utilized Redux architecture's unidirectional data flow with React for predictable and reliable DOM rendering
- Applied CSS media queries to create a more responsive design for improved user experience.
- Used Github extensively to coordinate with the project manager to keep steady workflow and communication.

Rev-up (Flask, PostgreSQL, Redux, ReactJS)

live | GitHub

Web inspired by meet-up, a web that allows users to share event details and view who will be attending an online or offline gathering.

- Incorporated React-Redux container and Redux selector patterns to architect highly scalable and uni-directional front-end state management.
- Developed a custom calendar using CSS3 to view a single users' attending events.
- Strengthened user privacy through backend authentication measures with werkzeug for password hashing.

Glintr (Express, ReactJS, Redux, AWS)

live | GitHub

A Flickr clone where users can share photos and comment on shared photos.

- Implemented AWS S3 to store images in the cloud for improved user experience and reduced server load while maintaining content security with AWS IAM.
- Configured the Node backend with PostgreSQL, using the Sequelize ORM for validations and database queries.
- Heavily DRYed up frontend code to allow easier future improvements.

Yoda-flow(Express, JavaScript, Pug)

live | GitHub

A stack-overflow inspired forum where users can ask and answer questions related to star wars.

- Implemented user votes with AJAX requests to allow dynamic updates of user votes.
- Ensured user autonomy through frontend allowing users to only access and make changes to their posts when logged in.
